

Air Force Sends Up Jets To Intercept "Unknown" Objects

Spotted On Radar, But No Contact

Washington (AP)—The Air Force said yesterday jet fighter planes had made an effort to intercept unknown objects in the sky over Washington after they had been spotted by radar, but no direct contact was made.

It was the second time within a week that unidentified objects had been radar-observed in the vicinity of the nation's capital.

The Air Force said that at 8:08 p.m. EST last night the Air Route Traffic Control Center, operated by the Civil Aeronautics Administration, picked up by radar "between four and 12 unidentified objects over the Washington vicinity."

The CAA notified the Air Force and two jet fighter interceptor planes were ordered up to make a check. These planes came from a base at New Castle, Del., approximately 90 miles from Washington.

These pilots appeared on the CAA radarscope at approximately 10:25 p.m. and were guided in on several of the unknown objects.

The Air Force said in its statement:

"One of the jet pilots reported sighting four lights in front approximately 10 miles and slightly above him but he reported he had no apparent closing speed. They disappeared before he could overtake them." Later the same pilot reported a steady light that disappeared in about a minute.

Sighting of the unidentified things in the sky by radar indicates something with substance was involved, not only light. It could, however, be small or large, as radar is capable of picking up a bird in flight. Radar also can detect such things as cloud formations.

The Air Route Traffic Control Center made several further attempts through its radar observation of the unidentified objects to guide the jets to a contact. It was unsuccessful, the Air Force said, until about 10:49 p.m. EST, when the same pilot who reported the first visual contact again reported sighting what he described as "a steady white light." The light disappeared within a matter of one minute, the Air Force said.

The CAA radar operator at the traffic control center, located at the Washington National Airport, calculated the unknown object's position at approximately 10 miles east of Mount Vernon, Va., which is near the airport.

The pilot said this "light" was about five miles ahead of his aircraft.

The two jets left the area at 12:40 a.m. But two additional jet aircraft were sent over and they stayed in the vicinity until 1:20 a.m.

The Air Force said no further contact, either visual or by radar, was made by the planes, although the "unknowns" were still apparent at 1:20 a.m. on the CAA radarscope.

Air Chiefs Draft Plans For Attack

Washington (AP)—Civil and military aviation chiefs have drafted a plan for quickly clearing U. S. skies of civil planes during any enemy air attack.

Other steps for lesser emergencies also were announced yesterday in a blueprint approved by the Defense and Commerce Departments and private flying groups.

The goal is to keep civilian planes from interfering with radar or visual spotting of invading military aircraft, and counter action by U. S. ground and air defenses.

A red warning means "air attack imminent." It calls for regional administrators of the Civil Aeronautics Administration in the Commerce Department to ground all flights except those approved by military commanders.

A white warning goes into effect automatically when a military emergency is declared, such as a state of war. Under this condition the regional CAA administrators, basing their decisions on requirements by the military, could impose any or all of these restrictions:

1. Require all planes to file a flight plan.
2. Require all planes to be equipped with two-way radio and listen for security instructions.
3. Forbid flights which might tax the capacity of the defense system to identify all air traffic.
4. Prescribe certain corridors for all traffic entering or departing defense zones.
5. Require local flights, those taking off and landing at the same airport, to remain below 2,000 feet.

FIVE CENTS

Democrats To Use 'Big Four' In Campaign

AP Analyst Points Up Red Worry

By William L. Ryan
(AP Foreign News Analyst)

The Russians are really putting on steam in Europe, Asia and the Middle East behind a "unity of action" campaign.

Political opportunities, malcontents and the frightened all are targets of this campaign. The goal: To mobilize every ounce of strength possible behind the Communists for bloodless victory of the USSR in the cold war.

The Chief of Iran's national police has underscored the Communist threat. Only now, after accepting the Communist help in creating a situation which forced it back into power, the Mossadegh Nationalist front realizes with a frightened start that the Communists are intent on gobbling it up.

The classic lines of the Communist approach in Iran were easy to detect, and it is difficult to believe the Nationalist leaders did not know what was going on. But that is always the Communist trump card. They join and give aid at the crucial moment, then slowly work to take over.

The threat, however, is not only in Iran. It is present throughout Europe and Asia in the form of an intensive drive, directed by Moscow, to attract all extremist elements—"anti-imperialist" is the catchall bait—to the Soviet cause.

Before World War Two the Communist popular front drive foreshadowed Soviet preparation for the possibility of world conflict.

The drive bespoke Soviet worry at the state of the USSR's preparedness. When the popular front drive was in full swing, the little war in Spain was serving as a testing ground for the big one to come. Today there is a little war in Korea. The reality of action campaign may reflect similar Soviet worry and message Soviet acts predicated upon that worry.

The visit of Pietro Nenni to Moscow and his personal audience with Stalin are important parts of the drive. Nenni represents Italy's extreme left wing Socialists. They collaborated so long with the Communists they were devoured. Nenni went to Moscow to receive a Stalin peace prize and Moscow put his picture on front pages with his statements.

Nenni is important to the Kremlin because he shows wavering left wingers the possibilities for personal power in playing along with the Communists in "unity of action." He is important for the west to watch because he illustrates the attention the USSR is giving to socialists of all Europe and Asia. The Russians are energetically damping the whole idea of "third force" Socialism as a middle way between Capitalism and Communism.

Moscow finds this "unity of action" movement more and more useful. It is coming to the fore in Japan, for example, where Pravda has reported a socialist split and a demand by leftist leaders for "unity of action with the Communist party of Japan." The same thing is reported by Pravda, perhaps with a large dash of wishful thinking, in West Germany. It says local socialists are breaking away from anti-Red leadership.

If the current drive means—as many think—that the Russians are as sure today as they were 15 years ago, it may well develop into one of the biggest stories of the war.

The CIO steelworkers threatened last night to strike 10 plants of the Aluminum Company of America Tuesday night, a management announcement said.

The announcement said the union broke off negotiations last night when the company turned down wage and other benefits demands that would have exceeded "by several cents" the package settlement Saturday of the steelworkers in their own industry.

Arthur J. Goldberg, general counsel for the union, denied that the union broke off negotiations, as the company said, or that there was any surprise element in the strike threat. He said the union formally advised the company two weeks ago it must have an agreement by Tuesday, or it would strike.

Goldberg also said that whether the total of union demands was more than the steelworkers got in their strike settlement with the steel industry was irrelevant. He said this was so because the union is asking Alcos to "correct inequities and differentials" that have

HOW TO WIN FRIENDS AND INFLUENCE DELEGATES—The President of the United States and the Democratic presidential nominee are shown here in an early Saturday-morning victory pose. The photo was made following Harry Truman's speech and his introduction of candidate Adlai Stevenson. Later that day the Democrats chose Alabama Sen. John Sparkman for second position on the ticket. Stevenson and Truman represent two distinctly varying viewpoints on their respective political capacities. In 1948 Truman ran for the nomination and won despite the urging of conservatives within the party that he bow out. His nomination resulted in a split party—but he won the election. Stevenson is the man who said, repeatedly, he "did not want" the nomination and "would not seek it"—but that he could not refuse a clear draft. The clear draft became apparent at the end of the second ballot at the party's national convention.

Young Mother Plummets To Death When Chute Fails

Budd Lake, N.J. (AP)—A young mother, clawing desperately at an unopened parachute, fell 2,500 feet to her death yesterday trying to become a member of a parachuting for fun club organized by her ex-paratrooper husband.

Eva Peron's Body Moved For Funeral

Buenos Aires, Argentine, (AP)—The body of Argentina's first lady, Eva Peron, was taken to the Ministry of Labor yesterday to lie in state until her funeral Tuesday.

Unseen by the mourning throngs, the body was transferred privately from the presidential palace, where Mrs. Peron died Saturday night, to the Ministry Building.

All Argentina was shrouded in deepest mourning for the wife and powerful political partner of President Juan D. Peron. She died after a long, critical illness wasted away her beauty while she was still in her thirties. Although the cause of death was not given officially, it generally was reported to have resulted from cancer.

President Peron and other high officials were present in the improvised chapel in the Ministry auditorium as the Rev. Herman Benitez, Mrs. Peron's spiritual adviser, conducted a mass marking the beginning of the lying-in-state.

The body was laid in a white mahogany casket with a full-length glass cover through which passing mourners could see the remains of the woman whose beauty was once the toast of two continents.

It was in this same building that Mrs. Peron for six years had wielded the unprecedented behind-the-scenes power which formed the backbone of her husband's regime.

"I killed her, I killed her," shrieked the anguished husband, Joseph Berard of Harrison.

His 24-year-old wife, Dorothy, mother of a 4-month-old daughter, plummeted to the ground before 700 near-hysterical spectators at initiation exercises of the Sky Divers' Club at Budd Lake Airport.

Her broken body was found in a nearby cabbage patch. Her blouse was ripped and torn where she had apparently scratched and fumbled to try to open her parachute. The emergency parachute was untouched.

Berard, who was on the verge of refusing to let his wife go up after a series of mishaps, collapsed as she fell to earth.

Berard himself had sustained bruises about the head in making the first jump of the day. Later, a small plane used by other club members crashed but no one was hurt. Then Mrs. Sarah Hazlett of Union jumped and was knocked unconscious when she hit her head while landing.

When Berard expressed misgivings about letting his wife go up, she reassured him, "Don't worry, honey, I'll be all right."

The club was organized last year by Berard, a steel construction worker and ex-paratrooper with 74 jumps to his credit. The 10 members have held six meets without any serious injuries before today. Four new members were to have been inducted yesterday after making their first jumps.

VFW Invites Both Nominees To Convention

Washington (AP)—Adlai Stevenson was invited yesterday to make his first campaign speech as Democratic presidential nominee on the same platform where Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower will open his drive for the presidency.

Stevenson was invited to address the national encampment of Veterans of Foreign Wars in Los Angeles Aug. 3-8. Eisenhower already has accepted a similar bid, but the exact date of his appearance has not been announced.

Frank C. Hilton, VFW commander in chief, said it is a VFW tradition to invite both nominees in presidential election years. He added they usually accept.

U. S. Has Great Tanker Fleet

Washington (AP)—The United States now has the world's largest, finest and privately owned merchant tanker fleet—vital ships in war—the National Federation of American Shipping reported yesterday.

But the federation's survey showed the U. S. is lagging behind Europe in building new oil and gas tankers.

Six Persons Are Killed In Collision

Uniontown, Pa. (AP)—A heavily-loaded truck ran wild down nearby Summit Mountain and crashed into a carload of picnickers yesterday, killing six persons.

The truck hit the car at the foot of the four-mile long hill at nearby Hopwood. The impact of the crash split the tractor of the truck in half and smashed the auto into bits.

The dead: Charles Burns, 59; his wife, Eliza, 57; their daughter, Mrs. Bertha Albertini, 30; and her husband, Arthur, 33, all of Midway, Pa.; and Estella Donovan, 76, of Ziegler, Ill.

Deputy Coroner Stephen Haky said a sixth body, presumably of the truck driver, was tentatively identified as Clyde Willis of Baltimore, Md. First reports said at least seven persons were killed.

Only a door and a jar of relish were found at the point of the crash. The rest of the wreckage was strewn for hundreds of yards. The tractor and the trailer apparently climbed the auto and jumped a five foot wall, spilling vegetable shortening and soap powder. The tractor itself came to rest at the wall.

A Mrs. William Pratt, who lives in a cottage along the highway, said she heard the crash.

"I saw a huge cloud of smoke and heard a woman scream. At first I thought it was a fire. By the time I got to the wreckage the smoke had cleared and there was only silence."

"Three mangled bodies lay along the road. And there was soap chips all over the place. It was terrible."

Hopwood is located at the foot of Summit Mountain on Route 40, a two and three-lane national highway to Baltimore, Md. It has been the scene of many run-away truck crashes in the past.

Reds Hate Both

Berlin (AP)—The Communists completed their dissatisfaction with American presidential tickets today by finding fault with the Democratic nominee, Adlai Stevenson.

Frank C. Hilton, VFW commander in chief, said it is a VFW tradition to invite both nominees in presidential election years. He added they usually accept.

U. S. Has Great Tanker Fleet

Washington (AP)—The United States now has the world's largest, finest and privately owned merchant tanker fleet—vital ships in war—the National Federation of American Shipping reported yesterday.

But the federation's survey showed the U. S. is lagging behind Europe in building new oil and gas tankers.

Congressional Vote Will Be Most Decisive

Washington (AP)—The decisive vote in November on military and foreign aid problems probably will be cast for congressional rather than presidential candidates.

All of the House and one-third of the Senate will be up for reelection this fall. The issues will be unusually clear.

The majority will go before the people on the record of voting sharp reductions in the funds requested for global defense.

The second session of the 82nd Congress set a modern budget-cutting record by slashing total requests 10 per cent, cutting foreign aid 23 per cent and the American military budget 9 per cent.

These reductions, engineered by a Republican-Southern Democratic coalition, were considerably greater than cuts made during the 1951 session of the same Congress.

The 82nd Congress also set new records by appropriating a total of 163 billion dollars for the American military buildup and 13 billion for foreign aid during two years.

Administration spokesmen contend that this high rate of spending will be necessary at home and may be partially required abroad until, at least, the middle of 1955.

So the voters who select representatives and senators this fall will, in effect, be asked to choose between these two viewpoints:

One—That the country can not afford such spiraling costs, that much of the money is being wasted and that America's "solvency" must be considered first.

Two—That security is more important than a balanced budget, that the country can afford its present outlay, and that waste is being attacked.

Inevitably, the outcome of congressional races will be considered as the public's voice on these basic issues when the same programs come up for debate again during the next Congress.

Egypt Cheers As Farouk Sails Away

Cairo, Egypt (AP)—Egypt's millions of common men, long oppressed by government graft and corruption, rejoiced yesterday while their former monarch, King Farouk I, sailed unhappily into exile with his Queen and baby son, the newly proclaimed ruler of this ancient land of the Nile.

Egyptians gleefully read newspaper headlines describing how the Army, under the new self-proclaimed commander in chief, Maj. Gen. Mohamed Naguib Bey, drove Farouk, the fabulously wealthy 32-year-old playboy King, from his throne as tanks and troops surrounded the royal palaces yesterday.

Naguib and Premier Aly M. Pasha conferred today on moving the government from the summer capital at Alexandria back to Cairo and immediately starting vigorous prosecution of palace favorites accused of graft during the 1948 Palestine war.

Farouk, his Queen Narriman and 6-month-old Crown Prince Ahmed Fuad sailed aboard the royal yacht Mahmoudia for Italy at 6 p.m., climaxing a startling series of events which began Wednesday when Gen. Naguib staged a military coup.

Union Shop Fight

Pittsburgh (AP)—A group of rank and file Pennsylvania railroad workers is fighting a union shop agreement signed by the railroad with the CIO United Railroaders.

Police said it would be several hours before they can determine whether there were any more casualties. They said those unaccounted for might have reached safety on the mainland or on one of the islands in the harbor.

The dead were identified by police as John Boisvert and Kenneth Drew, both of Lynn, Samuel Weiner of Malden and Isadore Lehouet of Lowell.

Missing was Edwin Nowak of Danvers.

HST, Stevenson, Barkley, Slated With Sparkman

Chicago (AP)—The Democratic high command decided yesterday to throw a "big four" speaking team into the fall campaign.

It will be headed by President Truman and Adlai Stevenson, the presidential nominee.

Democratic National Chairman Frank E. McKinney told reporters that President Truman advised him last night, "I am at your disposal."

McKinney said the big four will be President Truman, Stevenson, Vice President Alben Barkley and Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

McKinney said he hoped to open the campaign on Labor Day and have a "short, hard-hitting campaign of no more than 60 days."

He said the leaders who will wage the campaign form a "four-edged sword" whose services will be employed to the fullest.

McKinney said he hopes, personally, that President Truman does not make a "whistle stop" campaign before Labor Day. He made it clear he approves such a campaign by the President later.

The national chairman was among Democratic political chiefs who met with Stevenson during the day to chart strategy of the coming campaign which they hope will lead to victory in the November election.

It seemed certain that out of these huddles will come an all out effort to:

One—Keep the South solidly in the Democratic column.

Two—Win the important farm vote which in 1948 tipped the scales in favor of President Truman.

Three—Win the labor vote of the industrial centers.

Tomorrow, Stevenson will return to Springfield, the Illinois state capital, for a welcome from state employees and townsmen. This looks like it is going to be a tumultuous affair for the governor.

A dramatic interlude in the trip is expected at Bloomington, Stevenson's boyhood home, where he has been asked to make a short talk during the few minutes the train will pause there.

Indications were that Stevenson and Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama, his running mate for the vice presidency, will open their drive on Labor Day, Sept. 1, and then carry the campaign into every part of the nation.

The political leaders came to see Stevenson in the home of an aide, where he has been resting since his nomination by the Democratic National Convention.

Four Are Dead After Intense Squall Strikes

Salem, Mass. (AP)—A brief, intense squall with hurricane-force gusts yesterday swamped hundreds of small boats in Salem Harbor, leaving four known dead, one missing and presumed dead and 10 unaccounted for.

About 100 others in boats were rescued by the Coast Guard and private motor launches. Several were taken to hospitals to be treated for shock and immersion.

The known victims and those still unaccounted for some 10 hours after the storm struck were all in small boats off this famous old seaport.

Several larger boats reported missing earlier were reported as safe.

However, as darkness fell numerous boats of the 14-foot dory type, privately owned and rented for fishing purposes, were still missing.

Police said it would be several hours before they can determine whether there were any more casualties. They said those unaccounted for might have reached safety on the mainland or on one of the islands in the harbor.

The dead were identified by police as John Boisvert and Kenneth Drew, both of Lynn, Samuel Weiner of Malden and Isadore Lehouet of Lowell.

Missing was Edwin Nowak of Danvers.

Prohibition Party Drives For Dry Era

Williamsport, Pa. (AP)—The Pennsylvania Prohibition Party is expected to consider a resolution calling for an end to liquor and beer sales in the Commonwealth at the party's one day state convention today.

State Chairman R. R. Blews, DuBois, said such a resolution, urging a return to prohibition, would probably be adopted as part of the state group's platform.

The convention, attracting 500 temperance men and women from throughout the state, also is expected to support a ban on liquor and beer advertising on radio and television.

Blews said the convention will discuss refusal of the state election bureau to honor nominating petitions of five Prohibition Party candidates.

Commonwealth Secretary Gene D. Smith refused places on the ballot to the candidates on the grounds they failed to file a loyalty oath required by a 1951 law.

Blews contended the candidates never received word that such an oath was required.

Asked in advance of the convention if the party would carry an appeal to the courts, he said: "There's a possibility we may go into court with it. We're reformers and church people. We're not subversive. Anyone knows that. The refusal was rather unmanly and childish."

Denied a place on the ballot were Frances I. Miller, candidate for auditor general; Adriel I. Peters, Saegertown RD3, for state treasurer; Charles Palmer, Ridley Park, for justice of the state supreme court; Joseph Sproule, Dallas, and Clarence J. Shupp, candidates for the general assembly.

The state elections bureau has certified three party candidates for federal offices which are unaffected by the loyalty oath law.

They are Stuart Hamblen, Arcadia, Calif., for president; Enoch A. Holtwick, Greenville, Ill., for vice president, and Ira S. Saxman, Williamsport, for U. S. Senator.

The prohibition plank of the party's platform, adopted on a national level at Indianapolis last November, states:

Tobyhanna Blouse Firm Speeds Its Production

By James B. Gaffney
Tobyhanna — Provisions to cut bolts of material which is made into ladies blouses and shipped directly from the plant, enhances production for Tobyhanna Manufacturing Company at Tobyhanna.

Before the cutting operation was instituted, blouses were cut in the Bangor area and shipped to Tobyhanna for finishing. The distance between the two points resulted in loss of production and to speed the manufacture of blouses to customers all over the country, the firm opened their own cutting room.

A branch of Anhalt & Co., Inc. of New York, the Tobyhanna plant is considered an apparel contractor and makes high quality merchandise which is distributed widely from the hub in New York.

Steven Filings of Roseto is the new manager of the plant, having been named in the supervisory capacity early this month. Mrs. Helen Fadden, long experienced blouse operator is floor lady and through her know-how and guidance the mill keeps space with production in the highly competitive field.

Thirty-five girls who live in Tobyhanna, Pocono Lake and Gouldsboro comprise the working force and contribute piece-work labor.

Formerly the Red Men's Hall, the structure which houses equipment of Tobyhanna Mfg. Co. is two stories high with the basement designated as the cutting room area and packing and shipping center. Operations began in Tobyhanna Sept. 1945.

Double and single needle-work is completed at the mill as nylon, crepe and sheer tricot blouses are made. About 35 machines, the majority modern, are utilized in production and several always are kept in reserve in the event of a breakdown.

Poster's cutting room is occupied by a huge table with a smooth surface. Here the patterns are placed on the material, stacked several inches thick and an electric cutter in the hands of Foster weaves in and out forming the collars, pockets, sleeves and other parts of the blouse.

A spreader rolls the long bolt of material from one end of the table to the other, then reverses itself, dropping another layer in place. This operation continues until the material has reached its desired thickness and the electric cutter and Foster go to work.

After leaving the cutting room the material goes to stitchers, sewers, buttonholers, inspectors, pressers and finally the packers.

At present fall blouses with long sleeves are being manufactured and in the winter, Mrs. Fadden said, the operation reverses, with summer blouses being finished. Blouses sizes 32 to 38 and 40 to 46 are made by Tobyhanna Manufacturing Co. and are found on counters of many of America's prominent women's apparel shops and department stores.

Former Roseto Resident Dies In Mt. Bethel Auto Accident

Sailor Dies When Auto Overturns

A sailor, former resident of Roseto, died early Saturday morning after his car overturned on Route 611 near Portland.

The man, Ralph Falcone, 23, of 5021 26 St., S.E., Washington, D.C., had been visiting an uncle Philip Capone in Roseto.

Portland police chief Jesse Felker said Falcone's auto, a convertible, apparently failed to make the underpass on the Mount Bethel-Portland road.

The vehicle then rolled end over end and turned over on the top, sideways, with the wheels up.

Falcone was apparently thrown from the vehicle. He was found lying on a pile of rocks in a nearby field.

Felker said the man's throat was cut just under the chin. When the police chief arrived the injured man was bleeding profusely from this wound and others on his face.

He was treated at the scene by Drs. Edmund Krause and Eugene A. Rushin of Portland. Despite their efforts to save him, however, Falcone died.

The serviceman was pronounced dead by Dr. Krause at 3:10 a.m. The accident had apparently occurred at 2:35, Felker said.

Falcone had recently returned from a tour of duty with the Naval Quartermaster Corps in Korean waters.

He was serving on the USS Sheldrake, a naval survey unit, now based at Brooklyn yards at the time of his death.

Falcone was a native of Roseto and had returned to the Northampton community for an annual fire works celebration.

He was accompanied by CPO Edward J. Stacey who did not go with Falcone on the late-night ride which took him to his death.

The Falcone family moved from Roseto to Washington, D.C. while the son was a young man.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Falcone, of Washington, D.C.; his paternal grandfather, Philip M. Falcone and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Rose D'Imperio, both of Roseto.

The body was removed to Hough funeral home in Bangor to await services Wednesday morning.

A high mass will be celebrated in Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, Roseto Wednesday at 10 a.m.

Interment will be made in the family plot in the New Catholic Cemetery, Roseto.

Local Man Is Seriously Injured In Route 90 Collision

An East Stroudsburg resident was seriously injured yesterday when his car smashed into a tree on Route 90 in Cherry Valley after he ran off the road rather than hit a car in front of him.

The man, Raymond Couch, 71, Hallett St., was taken to Monroe County General Hospital where he was treated for severe cuts on the forehead and left knee and possible chest injuries.

Stroudsburg State Police, after investigating the accident, said that Couch apparently swerved off the road after he discovered he had no brakes on his car.

In driving his car off the road and into a tree, Couch avoided ramming into the rear end of an auto operated by Roy Ward, Stroudsburg RD2.

Ward, police said, had stopped at the narrow one-way bridge on Route 90 to allow traffic moving in the opposite direction to cross the bridge.

The 47-year-old Couch was admitted to the hospital last night. Damages to the vehicle were estimated at $300, according to police.

Brodheads ville — A six-year-old boy was injured yesterday when he darted in front of a station wagon on Legislative Route 45042 between McMichaels and Effort.

Edward Meekas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Meekas, was hospitalized last night at General Hospital, East Stroudsburg, with scalp cuts and slight abrasions on both legs.

Brodheads ville State police said the accident took place when the boy ran out the family drive directly into the path of a station wagon operated by Elwood J. Bonser, 43, of Bowmanstown.

Two Hurt In Sedan, Bus Mixup

Mount Pocono — Two persons were slightly injured yesterday afternoon near Tobyhanna in a traffic mixup involving a sedan car and a Greyhound bus.

Mount Pocono State police said the accident occurred in this manner:

Both vehicles were traveling in the same direction—toward Scranton on Route 611.

The bus, operated by Thomas R. Trinbale, 28, of Brooklyn, N. Y., pulled out of the right lane in an attempt to pass two vehicles traveling ahead of him.

At the same time, an unidentified car in front of him pulled over into the left lane.

Trinbale swerved back into the right lane. In so doing, he sideswiped the auto operated by Stanley Kociolok, DuPont, which was in the act of making a right turn into Route 507 at the intersection.

The accident occurred at Elf's Corners' intersection of Routes 611 and 507, police said.

Mrs. Ethel Clark, 59, of Binghamton, N. Y., a passenger on the bus, suffered an injury to her right ear. Police believed she would be treated by a doctor in Scranton on the arrival of the bus there.

Also slightly injured was Frank Byrk, 34, of Linden, N. J., who was riding on the right front side of the car.

Collision Results In No Injuries

Brodheads ville — Damages estimated at $450 resulted from a two-car collision on Route 115 near here at 5:20 p.m. yesterday.

Brodheads ville State police, who investigated the mishap, said the accident occurred when a third car pulled out in front of the vehicle operated by Miss Minerva W. Kline, a retired school teacher from Birdsboro, Pa.

Police said Miss Kline swerved onto the berm at the side of the road to avoid hitting the car which was turning northward on the highway.

The Kline vehicle struck the muddy area along the side of the road, then pulled back onto the road.

Elmer Fisher, 56, of Tamaqua, meanwhile applied his brakes to avoid hitting the third car, police said.

Fisher was traveling south on 115.

The Kline auto struck Fisher's vehicle in the side, police said, damaging the entire front of the first car and causing damages to the second.

There was no prosecution as a result of the accident.

Lashes Industry

Washington, (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Roger L. Putnam accused the steel industry yesterday of having held a loaded gun at the government's head to get an "unjustified price increase" as part of the steel strike settlement.

In a letter to Ellis Arnall, director of the Office of Price Stabilization, Putnam said:

"After going over the terms of the settlement between the steel industry and the steelworkers' union I tell you in all honesty that, on the basis of those terms, I cannot conceive of any good reason—economic or otherwise—for the

Cramer Is Injured In Collision

An East Stroudsburg man was treated at General Hospital early Sunday morning for injuries suffered when his car hit a pole on No. Courtland St. near Milford Crossing that borough.

The man, Art C. Cramer, 21, was treated for cut lips and possible rib fractures.

Police said the car ran over the curb, down the sidewalk and struck a pole head-on, at about 12:10 a.m. Saturday.

Damages to the Cramer auto were estimated at $450. The pole was damaged to the extent of $100, police believed.

Two Crashes Are Studied

Stroudsburg police investigated two accidents yesterday morning, one of which resulted in back injuries to a woman.

Mrs. Helen Klein, of 413 Elwood Ave., Woodside, N. J., suffered the back injuries. She was examined at General Hospital.

A passenger in a car operated by Morris Klein, same address, Mrs. Klein was removed from the scene of the accident on N. Fifth St.

Police said the Klein car was moving north when it cut to the right on a sharp curve and struck a service pole. Damages to the car were estimated at $150.

Earlier yesterday morning William Jones, 63, Dickson City, stopped on Seventh St. bridge. Police said Joseph Roth, Naval Air Station, Norfolk, Va., was unable to stop and collided with the Jones car. Damages were estimated at $270.

Everybody Lost!

Philip Murray has hailed the settlement of the steel strike as "a mighty victory for labor."

We question the accuracy of Mr. Murray's statement. How can it be a victory for labor when the steel workers lost $350,000,000 in wages?

How can it be a victory for labor when it will take another six weeks to get steel production back to its pre-strike level?

"Labor," as we interpret it, is composed of men who work with their hands in any given industry. The steel industry worker is in this category.

It is this type of person who lost a month and a half in time and, collectively a third of a billion in wages, for all he received during the strike was a token benefit which was a fraction of what he would have earned if he had continued at work.

No, we cannot see how, in any sense it was a victory for labor. In our book it was a victory for Murray and his 175-man policy committee. And we'd like to gamble that Murray and his corps of union chiefs did not fail to draw their salary checks regularly. During the shut-down.

Fishpond Philanthropy

It must be most heart-warming for the citizen to know that the United States Department of Agriculture is prostrating itself in efforts to assure him a fishpond for his farm.

You didn't know that? Then your Congressman must not have sent you a copy of that fascinating tome, the Farmer's Bulletin No. 1983, which in every single one of its 29 pages (printed in the government printing office at your expense, of course) practically knocked itself out in its endeavor to get that pond dug and filled with water and fish.

And how does this philanthropic project affect you? Well, apparently you can get federal money for your fishpond, because a generous government will give you 70 per cent. of the average cost of earth-moving not in excess of 12 cents a cubic yard.

And you can get 50 per cent. of the average cost of the concrete or rubble masonry used.

And you can get 50 per cent. of the average cost of other materials you will require, such as fencing, piping, seeding, and all that.

So there you have it, that nice, pretty farm pond, well stocked with fish from the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, and with much of the cost defrayed by a generous government supported mostly by a generous government supported mostly by folks who pay their taxes but don't have an extra acre for a fishpond.

Doubtless, when you pay the next installment on your income tax and get to wondering about some of those bills soon to float through your door on the first of the month, you will be able to dismiss such mundane matters from your mind as you contemplate the more abundant life being provided for others by the administration . . . with your tax dollars.

The wild azaleas of the Great Smoky mountains display different colored blossoms upon the same branch.

First great naval hero of the United States was John Paul Jones.

Washington Report

—by Fulton Lewis, Jr.

A view of the recent oratory coming from Chicago it occurs to me that a reminder of past events might prove interesting at this point.

During the campaign in 1932 a poster was displayed throughout the nation setting forth the following message (keep in mind, while reading it, recent events):

"When you groan under the burden of taxes remember that the deficit at the end of the last two years of Hooverism is around four billion dollars—the greatest in peace time history."

"That this huge deficit was not born overnight but the performance of the past two years have wiped out previous gains in the way of reducing our national debt and have brought it to the astounding total of nearly twenty billion dollars."

"Remember that although Republicans preached economy in 1930 and 1932, and promised highest efficiency at lowest cost in 1932, government bills have mounted steadily. Hooverism cost the taxpayers $4,200,000,000 in 1930-31; over $5,000,000,000 in 1931-32."

"That Alibi of veterans' bonus and unemployment relief cannot explain tripled expenses in the department of agriculture in the last five years; nor a jump of $15,000,000 in the Postoffice deficit; $5,000,000 in the department of labor; $40,000,000 for the shipping board; and $29,000,000 for the department of justice; nor why the Hoover Farm Board and its subsidiaries spend over $5,000,000 a year in salaries; nor why the Department of Commerce had to erect a palatial $17,500,000 building for its tariff-shrunk trade."

"That although it was clear that our chief source of revenue, income taxes, would drop seriously and retrenchment was the watchword in every home and business, government spending kept merrily on at $5,000,000 a day more than income."

"Remember: that the seventy-first Congress with a big Republican majority was in session from December 1930 until March 1931. It passed the appropriations which swelled the deficit. But it made no attempt to cut expenses or balance the budget."

"That although President Hoover could have called a special session of the Seventy-second Congress during the summer or autumn of 1931 to deal with the financial scare, he refused to take action in spite of urgent appeals."

"That a balanced budget as well as reconstruction plans had to await a Democratic majority in the House where all revenue measures must originate."

"Remember: That Republican leadership has brought us to the verge of bankruptcy."

"That Hoover economy means hardest economy in every household to save the money, to pay the taxes, to pay for the deficit that Hoover built."

"Democrats pledge at least 25 per cent reduction in expenses. Turn the spendthrifts out. Put responsible government in. Elect Roosevelt and Garner."

The poster was distributed by the National Democratic campaign committee.

The Republican National committee might save a little money by bringing this masterpiece of propaganda up to date. They could substitute Trumanism for Hooverism and jack up the figures by about 200 to one.

As to the references to special sessions of Congress, a footnote might be added that the current president has a penchant for such sessions and in each case it has cost the country additional billions of dollars.

The poster labels Herbert Hoover a spendthrift, but that was in 1932. The Democrats have displayed almost total aloofness to the word "economy" ever since. In fact, some of the Hoover economy that riled the Democratic party back in those days would look pretty good to a lot of us today. The postoffice deficit is now in the billions and some of the administration's bureaus spend over $5,000,000 a day in salaries.

I could compare the other figures, too, but there's no need to; you know the answers.

Political Contrasts

Comparing the Republican and Democratic conventions, it is possible to reach the conclusion that a partly out of a prolonged period, in this country, loses the art of political management.

The Democrats have had the same kind of a row as the Republicans and it gave every appearance of being deeper and of greater permanence. The dismissal from his candidacy of Vice President Allen Barkley by Jack Kroll of the CIO-PAC; the attempt of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. Senators Blair Moody and Hubert Humphrey to purge the Southern states; the fight on FEPC and states rights could have produced a bolt. But such political operators as Sam Rayburn, Leslie Biddle, Jim Farley, Chairman of the National Committee Frank E. McKinney, determined that the party would not be split. To an astonishing degree, in view of the complex problems they faced, they succeeded.

The Republicans had no such mature leadership. It is true that the ovation for Herbert Hoover brought tears of joy and sympathy to many an eye, but nothing that he or General MacArthur said made any difference at all. Every effort that was initiated to keep the bitter quarrels off the convention floor was vetoed by Tom Dewey and Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. long before the Republican Convention opened. Herbert Hoover warned both sides of the dangers of fratricidal warfare in front of television cameras; yet, it was impossible to get the Eisenhower management to consider any form of compromise.

This is immature leadership, as after all, the main business of a party is to elect its candidate and if events are permitted to occur on the convention floor which produce dissension and ill-will, the election is imperiled. The Republicans acted as though nothing mattered but the nomination; the Democratic leadership fought to preserve the party as was evidenced by the brilliant tactics of keeping Virginia, Louisiana and South Carolina seated.

Again, I contrast the two keynote speeches. General MacArthur's speech was his own views. Governor Dewey's keynote speech was a party document which laid down the line for the campaign.

Again, I must contrast the positive presiding tactics of Speaker Sam Rayburn and his Republican counterpart, Joe Martin. Rayburn, in his very first words, assumed the full authority of his position and challenged all recalcitrant elements in the convention to behave like gentlemen. He killed a fight on the platform with courage and skill. His was a swift, sharp handling of difficult situations. The Democrats had the advantage of having watched the Republican performance, and seeing how horrid it was. They tried to make improvements. One improvement was to keep such characters as Governor Dewey of New York and Governor Fine of Pennsylvania — and the Democrats must have plenty of them too — from strutting and blustering and becoming featured actors in a ham show. They limited the time of speakers and made them stick to the arrangements.

The essential difference is that in the 20 years that the Democrats have been in office, their seniors have mastered the art of politics and political operations. And they want to stay in office. This was never more obvious than in the parade up to the rostrum, after Barkley's speech, of all the party leaders, including those who instigated Jack Kroll's disrespectful and ill-mannered nonsense about Barkley being too old. Incidentally, how old is Phil Murray or William Green or John L. Lewis?

Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., Blair Moody, Hubert Humphrey, Herbert Lehman and other rebels blatantly and vociferously marched to the rostrum to toe the mark of party unity. That did not happen at any time in the Republican Convention. There was no joining of forces even to try to end factionalism. There was a chance for that after Hoover's speech; it was missed. Then Dirksen made his attack on Tom Dewey, the convention bowed Dewey, the bitterness bubbled over and is still bubbling. It could have been averted by political know-how.

Political maturity does not require subordination to the will of leadership. It does involve an understanding of goals and objectives. It does insist upon compromises and restraints in order that the goals and objectives may be achieved.

The senior leadership in the Democratic party grasped these essentials of party management; the Republicans ran away from the seniors and lost the advantages of experience.

It will be interesting and even important to see how these contrasts affect the management and results of the forthcoming campaign.

Hollywood

—by Gene Handsaker

Hollywood—Some wonderful Franz Lehar melodies have a lavish and colorful setting in the movies' current and third version of his operetta, "The Merry Widow."

Lana Turner, looking lush and lovely, and Argentina's Fernando Lamas are the Technicolor film's chief physical attractions. Lana's no great actress, but she poses fetchingly as the rich widow Crystal Radek visiting mythical Marshovia in 1900.

Lamas is no Mario Lanza nor even a Howard Keel at handling a song, but he cuts quite a dashing figure as Count Danilo. On orders of the king (Thomas Gomez) he must woo the widow and save the county from bankruptcy. But a mixup leads him to believe that her companion (Una Merkel) is the widow. And he wants to marry Lana, who he thinks is a poor chorus girl from America.

The problem is protracted tiresomely, and the first of the Lamas-Turner love close-ups is rather painful. To the picture's credit are flashy dance spectacles, handsome costumes and a colorful setting. Richard Haydn and John Abbott are amusing as flutery diplomats. The treatment of such Lehar favorites as "Girls, Girls, Girls," "Vilja" and "Merry Widow Waltz" is most agreeable.

A young fellow named Floyd Humeston was traveling about the country with a small circus seven-lion act a year ago when he got inducted into the Army.

He sold six of the beasts to zoos but couldn't part with his favorite, a handsome young cat named Fagan.

Humeston stashed Fagan out in

The Real News Newsreel Deduction after two weeks of telecast conventions: a political convention is the only show on earth that bores the principals and the supporting cast . . . Nothing has gone back so far as oratory . . . We had our new device, the electric "yawn-o-meter" in service this week at Chicago . . . It's a remarkable instrument indicating the sleepiness provoked by most political speakers . . . It showed that with a couple of exceptions the audience begins snoring within two minutes of the moment when orators open their mouths . . . In fact, it was such a relief to see and hear in Adlai Stevenson an intelligent, well-poised, nonshouting speaker with a sense of humor and a regard for brevity, that it made him a standard . . . It's a long time since a political convention has flushed a politician who has non-victive, nonbelligerent and non-gaseous . . . Stevenson, displaying the rare virtues of poise, good humor and restraint, is a sensation of the last quarter century.

Les Buffle handed every delegate a warning card which said "140,000,000 eyes are watching you," but Les was dead wrong. The tuncers-outers got their biggest workout in history . . . There were spoils of high drama and good video entertainment, but as a whole a convention is no video fan's delight . . . "I Love Lucy" and the Arthur Godfrey video hour maintain, a higher a cage near the Ft. Ord, Calif. Army base and was trying to find him a good home when a production aide at M-G-M heard of his troubles. The executive and a friend whipped out a story and got Fagan a home at M-G-M, which now offers his story as "Fearless Fagan."

"The movie is about 80 per cent true," Pic. Humeston, who was technical adviser, told me after the preview. Lanky Carleton Carpenter plays the harassed Humeston in the film. Untrue is the film's fitful romance between him and a visiting movie star played by Janet Leigh.

Carpenter has some rather tense scenes at close quarters with the 4-year-old lion and even Janet has one. Keenan Wynn is funny as a hardboiled sergeant. The picture is fairly amusing on the whole, though it starts as a farce and winds up, rather incongruously as grim melodrama.

It surprises us that at the Olympics the Russians haven't produced a pole vaulter who uses the wrong end of the stick . . . J. S. Backer, a Chicago traffic expert says that the dumbest driver make the safest ones . . . We trust that the next time he is chased up a tree by a cockeyed driver he has the comfort of knowing the driver had a low I. Q. . . In a few weeks the New York Stock Exchange extends its closing hour from 3 to 3:30 . . . This will not only break a tradition of 75 years but cause a big break in the habits of thousands of Wall Streeters . . . It will require a complete retooling of the financial world cocktail hour and highball-before-framing schedule . . .

"There must be a way to settle this thing without taking all year."

Portland Is Cooperating With Firemen

Portland — What may be the answer to fire protection for the smaller towns that do not have hydrants or a central water supply is being tried out at Delaware. Here a group of men have, through a cooperative effort, constructed a large reservoir in the center of the town for fire protection.

The reservoir measures 25 by 40 feet and holds 22,000 gallons of water. It was built by a group of public spirited men, including Charles Hartung, Miles Hutchinson, Howard Unangst, Earl Stout, Edward Osmun, Leonard Ort, Russell Allen, Walter Allen, Lemuel Ben Kirk, Henry Allison, Harold Allison, Ralph Hartung, Ervin McLain, Frank Doerner, Donald Lynch, Donald Beers, Joe Magyar, and Robert Hartung.

To try out the improvement arrangements were made with the Portland Fire Company to simulate a fire call from town. At 6:30 Monday afternoon the company received the call and made the run to Delaware. In just under five minutes the company made the run and laid hose just as they would in case of fire.

The truck normally carries 1500 feet of hose which would make it possible to reach nearly any place in town.

A bazaar and entertainment held by the Eagle's Nest farm brought funds to help defray the cost.

O. M. Scott Developed New Product

A near miracle in science—the amazing development in chemical weed control—is now almost taken for granted, but the strides made in this endeavor truly border on the miraculous!

A decade ago who would have dreamed of a chemical so effective as to differentiate in its action between grasses and broad-leaved weeds?

And ten years ago the very thought of chemicals that sort out one grass from another would have seemed almost as uncanny as Nature itself.

But today these things do exist. Now you can successfully combat that old enemy, crabgrass, and other obnoxious weeds through the use of Scutt, Scott's weedkiller, now being sold at Auer's Paint Store, 1016 W. Main St., Stroudsburg.

The story behind weed control has its beginning with the late pioneer seedman, O. M. Scott. He rebelled at the idea of weeds in farm crops, which he realized were becoming worse each year.

Scott knew that one serious cause of the rapid spread of weeds was the typical practice of sowing uncleaned seeds. So he set about to develop special mills to clean weeds out of seed. From this beginning evolved the industry which still bears his name.

Even though Mr. Scott succeeded in making his seed practically weed-free no one could subjugate the weed population of the soil because there are so many ways for them to propagate and spread. His heart would be gladdened were he now alive to see the wonderful progress made by modern science in controlling weeds by chemical means.

Weeds may be introduced into lawn areas in poorly cleaned seed, in soils or manure, or they may be blown or tracked in. The longevity of weed seeds buried in the ground has been verified by many agricultural researchers. Dr. F. W. Dent of California Institute of Technology has recently reported that even under conditions of cultivation, with soil temperature and moisture favorable for growth, dormant seeds may lie sleeping for ten years or more. Weed seeds that are deeply buried may live 25 or 30 years.

Almost any cultivated soil probably has enough weed seeds in it to assure a crop for a dozen years or more. This explains why weeds volunteer in garden areas that have been converted into lawns.

Weeds are obnoxious for reasons other than infestations of cultivated crops and lawns. Some are serious health menaces. Encounters with poison ivy or poison oak may be extremely painful to the individual. Even worse is the widespread sneezing and sniffling of hay fever victims resulting from airborne pollen of ragweed.

In the far west Klamath weed is the enemy of herders because it causes abortion in cattle. Even worse is the actual poisoning of livestock by the thistle-type weed called Halogeton. Jimson weed and stinging nettle are poisonous to humans.

Science Comes Through. Since weeds are apt to always be around, it is fortunate that a weedkiller such as Scutt, which utilizes "selective" controls, is available. Get the full story of this wonder-chemical at Auer's.

Anxious Little Mothers Vie In Playground Doll Parade

Copying their elders, the little girls of Stroudsburg had a regular family reunion on Saturday afternoon at the Stroudsburg Playground for the annual doll parade sponsored by the playground staff.

Like any family reunion, there was a general comparing of their dolls' health and good looks, an exchange of problems of clothing and caring for their dolls, all before the parade itself.

Then came the judging and awarding of prizes — so many prizes that there were few young mothers left disconsolate, and those few were cheered by the water events and the refreshments which were served to all the children.

Mrs. Fred Kinsley was faced with the task of judging the dolls, with first prize going to Barbara Fish; second to Gloria Stevens and third to Monica Lutjen. Special prizes in this division were won by Jane Longley, Sharon Winters and Mary Ann Delebe.

Gloria Jean Lutjen had the largest family of dolls according to the count of Mrs. Hugh Altomosa, with Jeanette Miller having the second largest family and Linda Haigh, third. Special prizes in this division went to Kathy Marsh, Gladys Mosteller, Jill Corbhill, Mildred Winters, Linda Kerebner, Sylvia Hineine, Elaine Foster and Linda Starner.

Mrs. Altomosa also judged the oldest doll division, with Peggy Dohy having the oldest doll; Kathy Wells, second oldest; Shirley LaBar, third; and Martha Jane Henning, fourth. Special prizes for other historic dolls went to Phyllis Munson, Kathy Starner, Mary Ann Nevil and Judy Detrich.

Martha Bonser won first prize in the foreign doll division, of which Mrs. Howard Schaller was the judge. Second prize went to Doreen Weber, third to Julie Stadfield with special prizes for Ethel Werkheiser and Patty Ridgely.

The funniest doll classification, also judged by Mrs. Schaller, brought out many competitors, with first prize going to Sandra Miller; second to Virginia Bogenkroger, and third to Tommy DeRenzis. Special prizes were awarded Jill Campbell, Libby Goodwin, Melody Klierin, Russell Chaston, Claudia Lesig, Tonya Martin, Pamie Shambaugh, Nina Hawley, Diana Howlings, Linda Miller, Gail Shambaugh and Nancy Teeter.

Bride dolls had a division of their own, judged by Mrs. Samuel Wells, with Kay Altomosa winning first, Barbara Payne, second and Janet Beldier, and Susie Carol Werkheiser, Bonnie Lee Werkheiser and Nancy Carol Altomosa coming up with special prizes.

In the smallest doll division, Sharon Beldier won first; Carolyn Warner, second and Renee Wilbur, third, and Lois Metcalf, Susan Harl, Vernette Parick, Kay Arnold, Evangeline Gailouris and Nancy Teeter winning special prizes. Mrs. Alfred Munson was judge of this class.

To Sally Ann Altomosa went the prize for the most original doll.

Another hotly contested division was the prettiest doll division with Mrs. Jacob Altomosa as judge. Joan Andrews won first; Jean and Joan Drake, second; and Susan Weber, third. Jackie Sue Mitchen, Mary Campbell, Susan Back, Madeline Hull and Martha Drake won special prizes.

Weddings, like summer, come and go. Yet — just like the changing seasons — each one is a little different. Some people get as much fun and drama out of weddings as others do from movies and television.

You might laugh at this. But just stop and think of all the work, preparation, apprehension and hundreds of details that lead up to that final 60-second march down the aisle to the altar.

It all adds up to quite a sum. But ten years from now what will stand out in your mind above all else? Certainly that all the work and expense was well worth the result. But if you remembered another important detail in your wedding plans, relieving that important day in all its splendor and happiness will be easy!

We're talking about your wedding album. To paraphrase a well-known slogan: "Ask the couple who owns one." Within its pages your wedding will always be alive and fresh — each photograph stirring up a hundred near-forgotten memories.

So if you are making wedding plans, be sure not to forget photographs!

THE Wyckoff SHOPPER

One of the cutest customers in our store last Friday was the roly-poly 16-month-old cherub in a yellow sundress, short enough to show her yellow panties with lacy bustle-back and bells that tinkled as she walked. Panties like these sell in our children's department for $1.98, and how the little girls love them! . . . A Bethlehem customer writes to ask whether we carry silver sea horse earrings. Sorry, we don't. Edna Harmon tells me they're not in the current Beau Craft line. However, we have wheels of fortune, dancing dolls, French poodles, leaves, and horse heads. Whatever her tastes, I think it's safe to say that Wyckoff's can always (ear) ring the bells! . . . Passing me on the main floor, Ruth Bush passed a $3.98 price tag on my wrist. Wonder if that's all she considers me worth, or am I marked down for clearance? . . . Some people use a glass or an empty jar for watering household plants. Perfectionists insist upon a watering can. Newest article of this type is of blue pottery, selling for $2.98. When it isn't busy tending the window garden it's beautifully ornamental. . . . I can't think of anything much worse than emerging from a sudden downpour and finding that one's wave went out with the tide, can you? Well, that won't happen to the woman who invests in the Koromai rain cape with attached bonnet now being sold in our notions department for $1. Delegates Picked Both Candidates

When the Democratic convention in its final session Saturday named Sen. John J. Sparkman of Alabama to run for vice-president, it came as no surprise to Rep. Francis Walter, Easton and other members of the 15th Congressional district delegation.

Rep. Walter and Harold Edwards, Stroudsburg delegate had predicted consistently that the vice nomination would go to one of three men—Richard Russell, Sparkman or Arkansas Sen. Fulbright.

Rep. Walter noted that "some of the Stevenson" supporters were talking "Russell but that it would have to be a draft". The area Congressman maintained his personal view that it would be Sparkman.

The possible Russell nomination was ruled out by Rep. Walter and Mr. Edwards on Tuesday night when they said the Georgia senator would not sacrifice his seniority in the Senate for the vice-presidential nomination even if it were offered to him.

Both men consistently played down the potential of Russell and the three other "possible choices" for the vice-presidential nomination.

In an interview with the Record's Pete Owyler Tuesday night, Rep. Walter and Edwards both made the prediction that "Sparkman would be the man" in second position.

Both men had previously mentioned the Alabama senator's name as the foremost possibility on the list.

Sparkman, who is 53, has been a consistent backer of the New Deal and Fair Deal programs during his terms in office.

He was elected to the House in 1936, on his initial bow into national politics, and was returned to that office once every two years until 1946.

In 1946, Sparkman achieved an unusual status in the annals of American politics when he became the first man to be elected to both the House and the Senate at the same time.

He retired from his House seat Sparkman became senator. Another election was held and he has held the Senate post ever since. A major split between Sparkman and the party came in March, 1948, when he and a group of other Southerners suggested that Truman pull out of the candidacy for the nation's highest office.

Sparkman later endorsed Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Democratic nomination.

He has been an outspoken advocate of rural electrification projects (TVA), housing proposals and price controls since the beginning of his political career.

Sparkman's second major deviation from the administration's theories is in the field of civil rights. He has, in the past, criticized Truman's stand on the issue.

A lawyer, Sparkman at one time had aspirations toward becoming a newspaperman. He was one of seven children and was educated in a one-room school. He later received his Masters' degree from the University of Alabama.

Sparkman was at no time identified with the "Dixiecrat" revolt of the 1948 convention. He did not endorse the Dixiecrat ticket during that election and, in 1949, he led a successful fight to seize control of the Democratic party itself back from the hands of the Southern coalition.

The vice candidate is married and has one daughter. He teaches an adult Bible class in the Methodist church to which he belongs.

Education Day Marked By Church

Why every child in America should have a Christian education was discussed at the Seventh-day Adventist church, Stroudsburg, Pa. at the 11 o'clock service on Saturday, July 26.

On educational day, observed nationally by Seventh-day Adventist churches, plans were made for the strengthening of local church schools, and parents were urged to enroll all their children in the schools of the church.

The school in Stroudsburg, it was announced, is one of more than 4,155 operated by the denomination on the elementary level. The church's educational system also includes 283 academies and colleges.

Since the Stroudsburg School first opened its doors, scores of students have graduated and have taken their place in the community and the country.

Two Decisive "Beats" Are Scored Here

The Daily Record scored two decisive beats over all other newspapers entering the 15th Congressional District area during the Democratic convention.

Both resulted from exclusive interviews with Rep. Francis Walter and Harold Edwards, delegates to the convention from this district.

The first of these two beats occurred on Monday night when Rep. Walter told Record interviewer Pete Owyler in an exclusive statement that:

"I believe he (Stevenson) will be the candidate and I'm sure he will accept the nomination."

At the same time, Walter pinpointed Alabama Sen. John Sparkman as the man to watch for the vice-presidential nomination.

No other newspaper in the area carried a definite statement to that effect until the middle of the week, when they finally got around to taking notice of the Stevenson "bandwagon" draft.

Sparkman's name did not figure in any other bulletins published in this area until after mid-week.

In a second exclusive interview published in Wednesday morning's edition of the Record, Rep. Walter and Edwards again told Owyler that Stevenson would be the man. They continued their assertion that Sparkman would be the vice nominee.

The "beat" included not only newspapers published in the area, but also such national papers and news services as the "good, gray New York Times" and the Associated Press.

Not until late Wednesday night did AP report a definite trend toward Stevenson. There was little or no mention of Sparkman's potential.

The Times failed to notice the vice-presidential nominee until Thursday morning.

Both interviews were published in prominent positions on the front page of The Record.

Rep. Walter and Mr. Edwards—through the facilities of The Daily Record—were the first men to recognize the strength of the "draft Stevenson" movement at the convention.

The two 15th Congressional District delegates stated with equal conviction on Sunday night that Stevenson would be nominated.

As was the case in the recent Republican convention, The Daily Record, through constant and persistent reporting of the facts and a thorough examination of political trends, gave its Monroe County readers a clear picture of the issue.

COAL STRIKE Nationwide Threatens

By the United Press

WASHINGTON, July 24 — John L. Lewis and the coal industry squared off today for a new wage battle amid threats of a nationwide coal strike within two months.

The United Mine Workers chief served notice yesterday on the bituminous coal industry that he wants a new contract for 400,000 soft-coal miners within 56 days.

If the negotiations are not successful—and indications are that both sides are set for a long, hard fight—the miners will be free to strike Sept. 20. The walkout would come just as the nation prepares for cooler weather.
